- "Opinions differ as to how long it will take before various predictable [environmental] crises occur and how much each problem will complicate the solution of the others, but it is very clear that we will be hard pressed and we will be lucky to escape by the skin of our teeth. The truth is that although we are called on to meet very difficult problems of great urgency we know pathetically little of the facts. So we must learn fast."
 - G.E.P. Box, "Statistics and the Environment", Journal of the Washington Academy of Sciences, 64, No. 2, 1974, p. 52
